WITH a drop cap, the initial sits within the margins and runs several lines deep into the paragraph, pushing some normal-sized text off these lines. This keeps the left and top margins of the paragraph flush. In modern browsers, this can be done with a combination of HTML and CSS by using the float: left; setting.